Career Pathways

As each student is unique and approaches their career differently, we provide tailored pathways to suit their interests and prepare them for life:

Corporate Jobs

Graduates can work as fashion designers, merchandisers, brand managers, or product developers in retail, e-commerce, and luxury brands, blending creativity with business expertise.

Government Jobs

Opportunities include roles in Textile Committees, Export Promotion Councils, and Handloom Corporations, promoting crafts and contributing to policy-making. Teaching and research roles are also available.

Higher Studies

Students can pursue master's degrees or diplomas in sustainable fashion, luxury management, or technology, or opt for an MBA in fashion business to advance their careers.

Research

Graduates can explore areas like sustainability, smart textiles, or cultural studies, collaborating with institutions and organizations to drive innovation.

Entrepreneurship

Entrepreneurial paths include launching fashion brands, boutiques, e-commerce stores, or offering consulting services in styling and branding.
