importance for saving bird species in current scenario. After the introductory session participants proceeded with the activity of Bird Watching and Nature's walk by all the students, Guests, faculty members, E. Committee members, staff of Sultanpur National Park.

Around 100 students from different faculties of SGT University took part in the event. The guests interacted well with the students and encouraged as well as appreciated them for organizing this Nest Mounting activity which was surely full of fun and learning for all the students. A total of 260 nests, which were made by the SGTU students themselves, were mounted on the trees in the National Park (Bird Sanctuary) as well as some surrounding areas in its close vicinity, keeping in view the Theme of Wild Life Conservation Week 2022 i.e. "Recovering Key Species for Ecosystem Restoration". These nests may prove very helpful for different species of the migratory birds which visit Sultanpur National Park every year.

The event was concluded with the Memento presentation and vote of thanks by Mr. Rajesh Chahal Inspector Wildlife, Department of Forest & Wild life, Haryana and Dr. Bijender Sindhu Environmental Committee, SGT University to all the invited guests and Participants. The program was highly acknowledged and admired by the participants and the guests of the event.

Outcome of the Programme:

Participants gets a hand on training for mounting Artificial Bird nest in nature to provide habitat for birds. Participants were thrilled and enthusiastic throughout the programme and were looking forward for more and more such types of activities in near future. It create a sense of belongingness' for the environment in participants.
